Melvin Boarg Reviews CLASSIC CRIME NOVELS

Leading piggy pen-pusher Melvin Boarg introduces 'Girk' readers to some masterpieces of crime fiction...

THE LONG PORK PIE
by Dashy Hammet
Piggy Marklowe investigates lowly play in the farmyard ranks with 'Bulldog Drummond' as a classic of P.I. (Pig Investigator) fiction.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SPECKLED FROG
by Sir Arthur Conan-Barbarian
The world's greatest detective solves a mystery in which the only clues are a stuffed wombat, a dead fish, and a length of string. Holmes hits the crook over the head with the wombat to gain a confession, then ties him up with the string. The fish is a red herring.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN-BARBARIAN

TEN LITTLE PRIGS
by Agatha Christie
Classic 'whodunnit' in which Miss Marple investigates a series of mysterious disappearances at a very posh boys' school. I won't reveal the surprise ending, in which Matron confesses to throwing the victims in the river, and is found guilty under the 1887 Water Pollution Act.

STIG SAVAGE GOES TO SMUGGLERS' TOP
by Eric Allthor
A rare venture into hard-hitting adult fiction by this famous children's author. Tough talking private eye Stig Savage catches some naughty crooks in this wizard adventure, and is rewarded with a slap up feast of tea and cream buns.

CLAUDE the CAT BURGLAR says

"If only I had a Lucky Butcher's foot key ring this might not have happened."

IT'S A BOBBY'S LIFE!

'S LIFE!

The Ballad of ROBBING HOOD

In Merrie Olde England, the folks were dismayed,
For Richard the King had gone off on a Crusade.
He'd left his cruel brother in charge of the land,
And John was a tyrant who ruled with cruel hand.

But one man stood up to the wicked King,
And of his deeds we now shall sing...
'Twas Robbing Hood, a merry crook,
From lords and ladies their jewels he took.

And also their pants, dresses and vests,
The hats from their heads and the shirts from their chests.
He took from the rich to give to the poor
Who lived in the forest and up on the moor.

For years he'd pursued his robbing career,
But now he was old and his ending drew near.
Maid Marian put his bow in his hand,
Said Rob: "Bury me where this arrow doth land!"

But the arrow flew high, and in falling it slayed
Noble King Richard (just back from a Crusade).

King John heard the news as he dined in his hall,
And said: "That old Hood ain't so bad after all!"

Old Robbing bucked up, and felt a lot better,
When a messenger came to him bearing a letter.
The letter from John offered Robbing a job,
With plenty of opportunities to steal and to rob.

Now Rob's not an outlaw, and he can relax.
He's taken a job helping John collect tax.
It gives him security, comfort and wealth,
As he robs from the poor to give to himself.
